Why ask the nincompoops, listed in your message. We had a short explanation on how they maintain and build these islands but then The Swing didn't really enjoy the visit since the rest of the time we were just told to buy some handicrafts from them or get on one of their boats for a short tour but it was extremely touristy and shamelessly commercial, I felt like an object of consumption more that a visitor came to learn about their culture, all they wanted from us was money and it felt very depressing. But then it just felt like it doubled. It raises The Swing questions and challenges of interpretation, and it also generates theological questions about the character of God.
